Program Description

Overview

The Department of Justice is committed to advancing work that promotes civil rights, increases access to justice, supports crime victims, protects the public from crime and evolving threats, and builds trust between law enforcement and the community.

This program will support demonstration sites in implementing a hope-centered framework to 1) address trauma experienced by law enforcement and 2) build trust with the communities they serve. Collective hope is a "shared desire for a better society articulated through a broad set of agreed upon goals and principles and elaborated through socially inclusive dialogue." (Braithwaite V. Collective Hope. The ANNALS of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. 2004;592(1):6-15. doi:10.1177/0002716203262049). This initiative will increase training, capacity, advocacy, outreach around Hope Theory as an organizing framework in order to repair and rebuild trusted relationships between law enforcement and the communities they serve. Ultimately, this work is intended to result in increased trust between law enforcement and the communities they serve, enhancing law enforcement officers' ability to effectively engage with community members, as well as increasing the likelihood that the community will assist in investigations to make communities safer and hold offenders accountable, and make it more likely that crime victims will report their victimizations to the police, reducing the likelihood of re-victimization.

Under this program, OVC will augment OVC-funded work done by the Healing Justice Alliance Initiative, which explored demonstrated strategies for implementing a trauma-informed and collaborative approach to build trust between communities of color and law enforcement agencies. Informed by young men of color who are survivors of violence, the project's outcomes improved lives, by pointing to ways to manage trauma, and focusing on changing community conditions that produce trauma.

Statutory Authority

34 U.S.C. § 20103(c)(1)(a)

Specific Information

Trauma, Policing, and Community Trust

Law enforcement officers are charged with the responsibility of protecting and serving the public. The nature of police work includes regular and ongoing exposure to possible trauma, violence, and the risk of potential harm. According to statistics released by the FBI in 2020, more than 56,034 law enforcement officers were assaulted in the line of duty in 2019, resulting in 17,188 injuries and 48 officer deaths (<https://ucr.fbi.gov/leoka/2019/home>). Being exposed to this kind of harm may result in officers experiencing vicarious trauma, which may affect their personal wellness, the actions they take, and how they relate to the communities they serve.

Research shows that repeated exposure to trauma can lead to an increase in flight or fight responses, post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), anxiety, depression, detachment, and disengagement. A person's ability to respond to trauma is also affected by what kinds of resources (internal and external) they have available to them. Unaddressed past trauma can rob individuals of their ability to connect with others and affects how they respond to stressful situations. Law enforcement officers frequently need to make quick decisions to protect the public. An officer's ability to do so is affected by many factors, including previous experience in similar circumstances, knowledge about the community, unconscious biases, and exposure to trauma and violence. All of these can affect stress response, reasoning, and judgment. Similarly, the community's perception is clouded by law enforcement responses and community conditions; which if negative, can erode community trust in law enforcement. Law enforcement and the community can benefit from resources such as trusted relationships, reduced community violence, and collective hope for the future.

The Nature of Resilience and Hope

Resilience has been described as a process, a trait, an outcome, or a combination of all three (Van Breda, A. D. (2018). A critical review of resilience theory and its relevance for social work. Social Work/Maatskaplike Werk, 54(1), 1-18. doi:10.15270/54-1-611); and as involving psychological characteristics such as self-efficacy, optimism, and faith (Connor, K. M., Davidson, J. R. (2003). Development of a new resilience scale: The Connor-Davidson resilience scale (CD-RISC). Depression and Anxiety, 18, 76-82. doi:10.1002/da.10113). Despite lacking a consensus definition, resilience continues to emerge as a characteristic needed to overcome adversity.

If resilience is described as recovering to a pre-trauma state, then hope is moving forward. Hope Theory, the belief that the future can be better than the past, is grounded in more than 2,000 studies with sound, validated measures that apply to all ages. Research indicates that hope not only buffers adversity and stress, but it also predicts important outcomes and can be both learned and sustained.

Research shows that hope is the mindset that drives resilient behaviors (Munoz, R. T., Hanks, H., & Hellman, C. M. (2020). Hope and resilience as distinct contributors to psychological flourishing among childhood trauma survivors. Traumatology, 26(2), 177-184. <https://doi.org/10.1037/rm0000224>). This initiative seeks to build trusting relationships between law enforcement and their communities through the development of a training rooted in hope science. Such a training could cement an internal foundation toward hope, give law enforcement officers resources and strategies for stressful responses, and improve relationships between external community members. Doing so, could bridge the gap between law enforcement and the communities they serve, moving towards healing.

Weaving Together Hope, Resilience, and Community Trust

Research suggests that law enforcement officers need to be resilient to serve society while facing stressful events daily. This line of research also demonstrates that hope can be taught and can become a protective factor against the stressors associated with law enforcement duties (Passmore S, Hemming E, McIntosh HC, Hellman CM. The relationship between hope, meaning in work, secondary traumatic stress, and burnout among child abuse pediatric clinicians. Perm J 2020;24:19.087. DOI: <https://doi.org/10.7812/TPP/19.087>). Through this initiative, OVC looks to establish hope navigators at the agency and community level, who will serve as trainers and facilitators on Hope Theory strategies to repair and rebuild relationships between law enforcement and the community.

Using the established evidence of Hope Theory, a common language can be established to serve as a guiding framework for law enforcement officers to respond to the community, crime victims, and fellow officers. When a common language is implemented, collective hope will emerge to create a cohesive and actionable plan to better serve crime victims while sustaining positive community relationships.

OJP has programs through the Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA) that work to respond to trauma and protect officer safety and wellness, such as the VALOR Officer Safety and Wellness Initiative. Responding to law enforcement victimization and trauma through Hope Theory strategies is complementary to these efforts to assist law enforcement by mitigating the effects of exposure to trauma.

Goals, Objectives, Deliverables, and Timeline

The primary goal of this initiative is to develop a train-the-trainer-curriculum to foster inclusion of a culture rooted in Hope Theory into law enforcement agencies. This work will 1) mitigate the negative effects of trauma and increase the well-being of law enforcement officers by increasing their hope; 2) provide a conceptual framework for relationships between communities and law enforcement agencies; and 3) increase collective hope to enhance safety and well-being, leadership, and promote relationship building with the community. Ultimately, this initiative will disseminate lessons learned to the field and contribute to systemic change in law enforcement culture.

Purpose Area 1 applicants must be law enforcement agencies. Purpose Area 2 applicants must have a demonstrated history of providing national scope training and technical assistance (TTA) and an expertise in working with victims of crime, trauma, collaboratives, and multidisciplinary audiences.

All demonstration sites are required to partner with a local researcher to conduct site-specific project process evaluation. The technical assistance provider will partner with a national evaluator to evaluate the project.

Grantees funded through this solicitation will engage in the following activities in order to meet the program goals and objectives. As a demonstration initiative, the technical assistance provider, OVC, and all selected sites will co-develop the project implementation, activities, and most deliverables.

Objectives

1. Work with the other demonstration sites and the technical assistance provider to develop a train-the-trainer curriculum to foster a law enforcement culture rooted in Hope Theory.
2. Develop a detailed plan for implementation and dissemination throughout the entire agency. This should include a tiered training system from the top down.
3. Develop a strategic plan for the agency that incorporates tangible goals and objectives for implementing a hope-centered agency framework and practice that responds to the needs of officers.
4. Develop new or expand existing policies and best practices that operationalize a common language of hope tailored for law enforcement that promote safety, wellbeing, and community oriented policing practices.
5. Create and implement a cohesive and actionable plan, using the hope-centered practices and policies, to respond and transform traumatic stress throughout the agency.
6. Develop a hope-centered community advisory council that will be charged with helping law enforcement implement a hope-centered approach by creating and maintaining community relationships and coordinated outreach. The council should include diverse stakeholders (for example: local citizens including youth and families, law enforcement, school staff, social service organizations, faith-based organizations, etc.).

7. Document and disseminate best practices and lessons learned through local analysis, and in coordination with national research conducted by the technical assistance provider.

Grantees funded through this solicitation will engage in the following activities in order to meet the program goals and objectives.

Purpose Area #1 - Demonstration Site Activities and Deliverables

- Work with the TA provider and other sites to develop and implement a hope-centered framework throughout the law enforcement agency.
- Work with the TA provider and other demonstration sites to develop a train-the-trainer toolkit uniquely designed for use by law enforcement agencies that includes a certification program for trainers/hope navigators within each agency for sustainability.
- Hire a full-time project coordinator to lead the initiative. This individual should have a strong relationship with law enforcement leadership and officers and be connected in the community.
- Hire a full-time community/hope navigator to be the liaison between the law enforcement department and the community. This individual should have a thorough understanding of the community’s complexity and historic trauma within the community.
- Plan and deliver one Community and Law Enforcement Hope Summit each year of the initiative.
- Partner with a research entity to collect data and conduct a project process evaluation to meet the stated goals and objectives.
- Produce a final report describing the methodology, findings, and recommendations of the local project process evaluation, to be shared with the field.

Purpose Area #2 - Technical Assistance Provider Activities and Deliverables

- Develop (with OVC and the demonstration sites), pilot, and implement a train-the-trainer curriculum. This curriculum should include a facilitator guide and will be published by OVC.
- Develop a toolkit that explains how to establish a hope-centered framework within a law enforcement agency and the community.
- Plan and execute regular site meetings that focus on exchanging ideas, lessons learned, networking and strategic development of future goals, and project implementation.
- Develop and implement a sustainability plan to start from project inception with each site to be added to the facilitator’s guide.
- Create a train-the-trainer model to build capacity.
- Develop a cadre of certified trainers who have been schooled under the train-the-trainer framework, and are a resource for OVC.
- Develop and implement a marketing dissemination plan.
- Partner with a research entity to conduct a national program evaluation. This evaluation should identify clear metrics and indicators at the local level, which will then be aggregated and analyzed at the national level. The TA provider should develop a clear theory of change and work with the demonstration sites and their local researchers for implementation and analysis.
- Develop a cadre of partnerships to assist with the initiative including but not limited to: implementation science; sustainability; collaboration; etc.
- Plan and deliver at least one all-sites meeting for each year of the demonstration initiative.
- Share findings to advance knowledge and practice in the field by identifying strategic and collaborative opportunities for sharing information. This includes but is not limited to delivering webinars, producing publications, and presenting at conferences.
- Deliver a robust program evaluation report for dissemination to the field.

All these objectives and activities will be completed in close coordination with OVC’s grant manager and other partners identified by OVC.

The Goals, Objectives, and Deliverables are directly related to the performance measures that demonstrate the results of the work completed, as discussed under Application and Submission Information.

Evidence-Based Programs or Practices

OJP strongly emphasizes the use of data and evidence in policymaking and program development in criminal justice, juvenile justice, and crime victim services. For additional information and resources on evidence-based programs or practices, see the OJP Grant Application Resource Guide.

Information Regarding Potential Evaluation of Programs and Activities

OJP may conduct or support an evaluation of the programs and activities funded under this solicitation. For additional information, see the OJP Grant Application Resource Guide section entitled "Information Regarding Potential Evaluation of Programs and Activities."

Priority Areas

The Department of Justice is committed to advancing work that promotes civil rights, increases access to justice, supports crime victims, protects the public from crime and evolving threats, and builds trust between law enforcement and the community. In FY 2021, OJP will give priority consideration in award decisions to applications that demonstrate ways in which their projects will advance one or more of these areas.

To receive priority consideration for advancing one or more of the Department’s priorities, the applicant must provide a sufficient narrative explanation as an attachment, that specifies how the project will advance the promotion of civil rights, access to justice, support to crime victims, protecting the public from crime and evolving threats, or building trust between law enforcement and the community.

In addition, OJP will give priority consideration, if applicable, to applicants that demonstrate that the individuals who are intended to benefit from the requested grant reside in high-poverty areas or persistent-poverty counties.

To receive priority consideration under the poverty priority, the applicant must provide information to demonstrate that the individuals who are intended to benefit from the requested grant reside in high-poverty areas or persistent poverty counties. For purposes of this priority consideration, the term "high-poverty area" means any census tract with a poverty rate of at least 20 percent as measured by the 2013–2017 5-year data series available from the American Community Survey of the Census Bureau (applicants may search by census tract at <https://www.census.gov/acs/www/data/data-tables-and-tools/narrative-profiles/2017/>) and the term "persistent poverty counties" means any county that has had 20 percent or more of its population living in poverty over the past 30 years, as measured by the 1990 and 2000 decennial censuses and the most recent Small Area Income and Poverty Estimates (applicants may search by county at <https://www.census.gov/data/tables/time-series/dec/census-poverty.html> and at <https://www.census.gov/programs-surveys/saipe.html>).

Priority consideration is one of many factors that OJP considers in making funding decisions and is not a guarantee of an award.

Application Review Information

Review Criteria

a. Merit Review Criteria

Applications that meet basic minimum requirements will be evaluated by peer reviewers. Applications will be evaluated on how the proposed project/program addresses the following criteria:

1. Statement of the Problem/Description of the Issue (20%) - evaluate the applicant's understanding of the program/issue to be addressed.
2. Project Design and Implementation (45%) - evaluate the adequacy of the proposal, including the goals, objectives, timelines, milestones, and deliverables.
3. Capabilities and Competencies (20%) - evaluate administrative and technical capacity of the applicant to successfully accomplish the goals and objectives.
4. Plan for Collecting the Data Required for this Solicitation's Performance Measures (5%) - evaluate the applicant's understanding of the performance data reporting requirements and the plan for collecting the required data.
5. Budget (10%) - evaluate for completeness, cost effectiveness, and allowability (e.g., reasonable, allocable, and necessary for project activities).

b. Other Review Criteria/Factors

Other important considerations for OVC include geographic diversity, strategic priorities (specifically including, but not limited to, those mentioned above relating to priority areas), available funding, past performance, and the extent to which the Budget Worksheet and Budget Narrative (Web-based form) accurately explain project costs that are reasonable, necessary, and otherwise allowable under federal law and applicable federal cost principles.

Review Process

Applications submitted under this solicitation that meet basic minimum requirements, will be evaluated for technical merit by a peer review panel(s) in accordance with OJP peer review policy and procedures using the stated review criteria above.

OJP screens applications to ensure they meet the basic minimum requirements prior to conducting peer review. Although specific requirements may vary, the following are common requirements applicable to all solicitations for funding under OJP programs:

- The application must be submitted by an eligible type of applicant.
- The application must request funding within programmatic funding constraints (if applicable).
- The application must be responsive to the scope of the solicitation.
- The application must include all items necessary to meet the basic minimum requirements.

Pursuant to the Part 200 Uniform Requirements, before award decisions are made, OJP also reviews information related to the degree of risk posed by the applicant. Among other things to help assess whether an applicant that has one or more prior federal awards has a satisfactory record with respect to performance, integrity, and business ethics, OJP checks whether the applicant is listed in SAM as excluded from receiving a federal award.

In addition, if OJP anticipates that an award will exceed $250,000 in federal funds, OJP also must review and consider any information about the applicant that appears in the non-public segment of the integrity and performance system accessible through SAM (currently, the Federal Awardee Performance and Integrity Information System, FAPIIS).

Important note on FAPIIS: An applicant, may review and comment on any information about itself that currently appears in FAPIIS and was entered by a federal awarding agency. OJP will consider any such comments by the applicant, in addition to the other information in FAPIIS, in its assessment of the risk posed by the applicant. Absent explicit statutory authorization or written delegation of authority to the contrary, all final award decisions will be made by the Assistant Attorney General, who may take into account not only peer review ratings and OVC recommendations, but also other factors as indicated in this section.
