ADDITIONAL INFORMATIONAgency Name:

Centers for Disease Control - NCIPC

Description:

Community Violence (CV) can be prevented by meeting communities where they are and working with them to determine needs and priorities for prevention. This involves creating an infrastructure that supports a comprehensive approach based on scaling up existing CV efforts while also implementing proven programs, policies and practices that have immediate and long-lasting impacts to stem current violence and prevent future violence from occurring. Specifically, this program will fund up to 50 community-driven collaborative applicants to build and increase local CV capacity and support funded recipients to establish a community-driven prevention system that works with community organizations, local communities and affected populations, and multisector partners to prevent violence.
